

SCRIPT FOR INTRODUCING A STUDENTS FIGHT BACK SPEAKER:

For over 20 years, Students Fight Back has been empowering millions of people in colleges and other organizations across the country to be their own best protectors in combating violence of all kinds! Our mission is to teach students practical skills they can use to set and respect boundaries, support each other, learn to use their voices with confidence, and defend themselves if necessary. Today you will be learning the valuable violence prevention tools that have been talked about on the Nike Trained Podcast, Women's Health Magazine, the CBS Early Show and CNN as well as in The New York Times, Runners World, and the Fox True Crime Podcast.

Today our speaker is _____. She is the CEO of Girls Fight Back, a Self-Defense expert, and an award-winning international speaker. She has years of experience educating on interpersonal violence, sexual assault prevention, stalking situations and campus safety. She is an NACP Certified Victim Advocate and has extensive training in full-contact physical self-defense, ground fighting, and weapons defense.

In other words, this girl can kick some ass!

There are representatives from _____ here who are victim advocates and available to speak with anyone during or after the program if you need. At this time, please silence your phones, but feel free to join the conversation on Instagram, Tiktok, Facebook and X using our hashtag #badassbasics!

Let's give a warm welcome to _____!
